

GREAT INCREASE IN CUBAN TRADE

Figures Show That the Gem of the Antilles is a Profitable Neighbor for Uncle Sam.

EACH YEAR SHOWS A GAIN SUGAR THE PRINCIPAL ARTICLE OF EXPORT.

(Special to The Herald.) Washington, D. C., Aug. 28.—That Cuba is becoming profitable to us as a ward and neighbor is shown by a recent report prepared by the bureau of statistics of the department of commerce and labor on the commerce of the United States and Cuba during the fiscal year ending June 30, 1907.

Trade of the United States with Cuba in the fiscal year just ended aggregated almost $150,000,000. The imports from the island were nearly $100,000,000 in value and the exports thereto nearly $50,000,000. To be more accurate, the value of the imports from Cuba in the fiscal year ending June 30, 1907, was $97,441,630, and the exports thereto $43,565,371.

Exceeded Previous Years.

In both imports and exports the trade with Cuba in 1907 exceeded that of the previous year. The largest imports from the island in any previous year were those of 1905, when they aggregated $100,000,000. The imports from the island prior to 1907 were those of 1903, when they aggregated $77,750,000.

The imports from the island were valued at 15 per cent of the highest record year under Spanish rule, 1874, when the imports from Cuba were valued at $85,000,000. The exports to the island are about twice as much as those of the highest export year under Spanish rule, 1887, when the exports to the island were $21,000,000 in value.

Reciprocity Treaty.

A comparison of the trade with Cuba in 1907 with that of the last year prior to the present reciprocity treaty, 1903, gives some interesting results. The reciprocity treaty went into effect in December, 1903, and the last full year of trade prior to that date was the fiscal year ending June 30, 1903. A comparison of the figures of that year with those of 1907 shows an increase of about 50 per cent in the imports from the island and about 135 per cent in the exports to the island. During that same period the increase in imports from other parts of the world was about 40 per cent and the increase of exports to other parts of the world about 30 per cent.

Staple Articles of Trade.

On the import side the chief increase shows in sugar, leaf tobacco and bananas. Sugar shows an increase from $42,500,000 in 1903 to $90,000,000 in 1907; leaf tobacco an increase from practically $10,000,000 to $13,000,000; and bananas from a little over $500,000 to $1,000,000, while cigars and cigarettes show but a very slight increase.

On the export side the number of articles forming the trade with the island is much larger than those on the import side, but in nearly all cases they show a marked increase in 1907 over 1903. Flour shows an increase from a little less than $2,000,000 to over $2,250,000; boots and shoes from a little over $500,000 to over $1,000,000; cotton cloths from less than $250,000 to nearly $300,000; lumber from $750,000 to $1,200,000; corn from $300,000 to $1,500,000; vegetables from less than $500,000 to $1,000,000; cotton cloths from less than $250,000 to nearly $300,000; lumber from $750,000 to $1,200,000; corn from $300,000 to $1,500,000; vegetables from less than $500,000 to $1,000,000; eggs from $125,000 to over $1,000,000, while in many other articles the growth is equally striking.

LAWYERS AGAIN IN HOT WRANGLE

Heney and Delmas Exchange Personalities During the Wearisome Glass Trial.

BANK TELLER ON STAND EVIDENCE IN SUPPORT OF THE PROSECUTION.

San Francisco, Aug. 28.—State Senator Russell Lukens was a witness today in the trial of Louis Glass for bribery and was subjected by Assistant District Attorney Heney to an examination which could not have been more severe had he been placed on the stand by the other side. Senator Lukens was preceded in the witness chair by Benjamin A. Pendleton and Eugene T. Thurston, Jr., who were members of the city council of Oakland in the fall of 1905, when the Home Telephone company was seeking a rival franchise in that city against the efforts of the Pacific States company to maintain its monopoly. Mr. Pendleton and Mr. Thurston testified to hostilities extended to them by Agent Halsey of the old company and by Lukens, who was in its employment as a lawyer, but no testimony was forthcoming from the island in the hearing made to them. The prosecution will conclude tomorrow.

Banker on the Stand.

Henry T. Hanley, paying teller of the Wells-Fargo National bank, was the first witness called this morning in the Glass bribery trial. His testimony was identical with that given yesterday by other bank men in support of the claim made by the prosecution that checks of the Pacific States Telephone & Telegraph company required the signature of either Louis Glass or E. J. Zimmer during the period of the alleged bribery. Henry T. Scott was recalled to identify his signature on various company vouchers, and during his examination Heney and Delmas engaged in the first good-natured badinage since they became opposing figures in the bribery graft prosecution.

Counsel in Wrangle.

But all this was proved a few minutes later to be merely a breeze before the gale. Last night, when Chief Counsel Pillsbury was on the stand, Delmas introduced in evidence certain vouchers of the telephone company showing the payments monthly to Ruef of the sum of $1,250, ostensibly as an attorney's fee but in reality the prosecution claims to buy his influence with municipal officials. Some of these vouchers bore the approval signature of President Scott, and still later ones, similarly approved and signed, were for lesser monthly amounts, showing that Ruef's fees had been cut down by order of Scott, as eventually proved.

Heney Stated It.

These latter vouchers Delmas did not offer in evidence until today when Scott was under cross-examination. Referring to the withholding of them, Heney accused Delmas of practicing a trick of evasion. This aroused Delmas to reply, "I don't know what this individual means means by trick of evasion, but I presume he used the term in a desire to be gentlemanly. The truth is that Mr. Pillsbury was the first to inject the name of Ruef into these proceedings."

"That's not so," interrupted Heney. "Ruef's name has been in this ever since the beginning."

"Yes," said Delmas, "it has been in by the loud-mouthed declamations of counsel, but not by any particle of evidence until introduced by Mr. Pillsbury."

Court Ends Controversy.

This led to a hot exchange of personalities, Heney asserting that Delmas himself had first brought in Ruef's name. The controversy was finally ended by Judge Lawler sustaining an objection by Delmas.

President Scott testified to approving a voucher for $1,200, presumably for Ruef's services. At the time he said these allowances must be cut down. Later he approved four similar vouchers for $500 each, all paid to Ruef through Halsey, and explained that they were given out by him by order and were the last payments made to Ruef.

"At the time you approved those vouchers did you know of any service that had been performed by Ruef for the company?" asked Heney. Scott answered, "No, sir."

When Scott assumed the presidency Glass's salary was $15,000 a year.

Delmas handed to Scott a telegram, which purported to have been sent to the general offices by Halsey from Minneapolis at a time when, according to Scott's testimony, Halsey was in the state of Washington. Scott said he never had seen such a telegram, whereupon Heney took it from his hand and examined it. This caused another flare up by the opposing counsel. The telegram was later introduced in evidence.

ADDRESS ON THE COMMON LAW

placed on the same footing, and willful infringement is made a criminal offense. Civil remedies are also provided of a comprehensive nature.

(6) The rights of aliens are enlarged to the extent that any person resident in any part of the world may obtain American copyright by first, or contemporaneously with its first publication in a foreign country, publishing his work within the limits of the United States.

This places the United States law of copyrights upon a par with that of Great Britain and some other foreign countries.

Distinct Advance Marked.

The bill as now framed is comprehensive and quite complete, and it is believed that if it is passed it will mark a distinct advance in the protection of this class of property.

Both of the bills were reported to congress at the last session, and the contention of those interested, to reintroduce the bills as soon as congress convenes and to press them for passage.

The principal difference between the bills lies in the fact that the senate bill introduced specifically the protection of musical copyright against reproductions by phonograph discs or piano records. While the house bill does not contain any such provision, it is a difference of opinion between the committees as to the propriety of protecting musical copyright to this extent, but the house committee felt that the language of the present law, which they have adhered to, might be broad enough to include such copies, and as there is now pending in the supreme court a case involving this question, they preferred to wait until the court has expressed its opinion on this point before attempting to change the statute in this particular. The senate committee felt that the proposition was inherently right, and that therefore it could do no harm to express it in the statute.

The bills will be pending again in the next congress, and your committee may be able to aid in securing its passage; therefore, the committee would be glad to be continued.

The selection of the place of the next convention is left with the executive committee. Ambassador Bryce was made an honorary member of the association. In accordance with a resolution adopted at today's session, the bureau of comparative law was organized this afternoon, and the purpose of taking charge of issuing a bulletin showing the titles of foreign legislation during the year and to begin the gradual translation of foreign codes and publishing them in uniform volumes.

HUGE COAL PILE BURNING.

Billings, Mont., Sugar Company Likely to Suffer Heavy Loss.

(Special to The Herald.)

Butte, Mont., Aug. 28.—Advices from Billings are to the effect that the spontaneous fires in the mountain of coal stored at Billings by the Billings Sugar factory have broken out afresh, despite the fact that large forces of men have been fighting the smoldering hill of fuel for the past week. The loss has reached more than $5,000, and is steadily growing. The fumes emitted by the burning coal are so powerful that a number of the men fighting have been overcome and white men refused to further combat the flames, and Mexican and negro field laborers have been pressed into service. Flooding the outer surface of the coal hill seems of little effect, and the fighting has been done by the use of dynamite. Half a hundred thousand tons of fuel had been stored by the company in anticipation of a coal shortage, and the greater part of it appears doomed. It is impossible to see the horses hauling it away because of the gases.

BIG FLOW OF GAS STRUCK IN WYOMING OIL FIELDS

(Special to The Herald.)

Billings, Mont., Aug. 28.—The Montana & Wyoming Oil company has struck a large quantity of gas beneath the Garfield, Wyo., while drilling for oil in that vicinity. The flow is unprecedented. A new well has been started and at a depth of 200 feet the drill became stuck. Another hole was started to bore out the drill, and this also became stuck within ten feet of a large oil strata. John D. Loeckamp, president of the company, accompanied by W. Y. Terrell, Jr., of the Standard Oil company, left for the new fields today and will make arrangements to utilize the gas while there for manufacturing purposes and in the drilling of other wells in that vicinity. It is the intention of the company to build a pipe line from the wells to this city without delay.

WOULD HARNESS OLD SOL'S RAYS

Frank Shuman, Philadelphia Chemist, Discovers New Source of Power.

PLANT LOOKS LIKE HOT BED ENGINE RUN BY ACTION OF THE SUN.

Philadelphia, Aug.—By using the principle of the common hotbed by which farmers grow fresh vegetables in the dead of winter, Frank Shuman, engineer and chemist, thinks he has solved the old problem of converting the heat of sun into power at such a low cost that its commercial use is possible.

He has now running an engine that gets its power from the sun and it is so simple that child can operate it. Shuman, who is the inventor of the concrete file used in all skyscrapers and the wire glass, says the engine will revolutionize the motive power of the world.

On the Shuman property in Tacony there is what looks like a big hotbed, 18x12 glass cover and a big wooden box sunk into the ground and covered with a double top of ordinary hothouse glass with a one-inch air space between the layers.

Has Coils of Pipe.

Instead of being filled with vegetables, however, it is filled with coiled iron pipes. These pipes, which are filled with water, connect with a small upright engine.

The circuit is known as a "closed one" that is, the engine in the pipes is converted to vapor in the big box, passes through the engine, developing three and a half horse power, thence into a condenser and back again to the hot box. No fuel is used, the heat of the sun being relied upon to convert the liquid whatever is in the pipes into vapor. The light rays of the sun in this latitude can be converted into heat and they will yield high temperatures. In the tropics this would run to perhaps 500 degrees or higher. The light rays penetrate through the glass cover and are absorbed by the converted into heat rays by the dark metallic surfaces of the pipes. The air space prevents the heat from escaping and whatever is in the pipes will boil.

If there is water in the pipes it will be turned into steam and that steam can be used to run an engine. This small hot-box, if in the tropics, the inventor says, would yield about 30-horse-power.

Chief engineers of a bureau, and a string of scientists are coming to see the machine work. Before the patent office would take any stock in it an expert was sent on and he became convinced.

Shuman, who is a wealthy man, frankly admits that his machine will not run in cloudy weather. He believes that by using his engine to make liquid air, which in turn can be transported anywhere, coal will be displaced.

Dr. George Waldron and Three Women Instantly Killed Near Rochester, N. Y.

Rochester, N. Y., Aug. 28.—Dr. George Waldron of Rochester and three women were instantly killed when a Rochester & Eastern train struck their automobile this afternoon.

Dr. Waldron went to Hopewell this morning with his daughter to visit at the home of William Scanlin, and had taken the three women, all of whom were more than 66 years old, for an automobile ride. They were on their way to the Freshour crossing to meet another friend of the Scanlin family. Witnesses of the accident say as the machine approached the trolley tracks it was seen by the motorman. According to the motorman, he made a signal and Dr. Waldron slowed up. Then, apparently thinking that he would cross before the car reached him, he started on again. It is thought that the automobile did not respond readily to the lever of the trolley. The bodies were frightfully crushed.

MILLIONAIRE IN COTTAGE

Richest Man in New Orleans Buys Humble Dwelling—Wife Does the Housework.

New Orleans, La., Aug.—When William Edworn, richest man in New Orleans, announced his intention of buying a new home the real estate agents of the city prepared to "cut a pie." The price of all the desirable mansions in the city that were for sale jumped about 40 per cent. Real estate dealers thought he would be satisfied only with the best and would be willing to pay a high price for it.

But that was not the way in which Edworn acquired his $200,000, and he did not propose to so. He had a son, who had been his custom of getting the big end of the bargain.

Great was the amazement of the realty dealers when the announcement was made that Edworn had purchased a humble one-story cottage on a side street where the rent is $2 a month. Edworn says he will spend his days in this little home.

Hundreds of persons rode out to the cottage to see the millionaire in the shape of the multi-millionaire's cottage, where his wife does the housework just as she did before fortune dealt so lavishly with them.

Edworn was president of the local war mill, but he has turned his genius to railroad building and is now the state's principal figure in this class of enterprise.

BULLDOG GETS ON A JAG.

Cleveland Canine, Well "Loaded," is Greatest Scene on Street.

Cleveland, O., Aug. 28.—A good-natured dog, well described as a sort of curves and his spirits hilarious, a half-grown brindle bull terrier with a full head of hair, was seen today on the streets of Cleveland. He was accompanied by a hundred people at the noon hour in Euclid avenue.

When the general public began to take notice of the dog, he was on the sidewalk in front of the First National bank and was making honest, if somewhat awkward, attempts to get into the bank.

By his walk was not straight enough always to lead him directly to the person he stared at, but he was not of fended if he brought up against someone else.

At first the passers-by who stopped to watch the dog feared he was a victim of rabies, but a red-nosed person soon diagnosed the symptoms, and his announcement that the dog was "plain drunk" was too plainly the truth to be doubted.

A policeman finally came along and had the dog taken down into the big excavator for the foundation of the new First National bank building, and there his dogship proceeded to sleep off his "jag."

GAMBLER WILL SELL OUT.

Saratoga, Aug. 28.—Signs have been posted before Richard Canfield's Saratoga club house and at his famous Italian garden and park announcing that the place is for sale.
